

Geography

Geography education at Mount St Mary's aims to equip students with the knowledge and skills to be successful citizen in our own community and beyond. Our curriculum is designed to give our students an appreciation of the evolving nature of Geography and the impact it has on them and the wider world. Through our curriculum mapping, students will steadily work out how the world works and how it can and will change in the future. Students will learn about places that are outside of their own experience, they will develop their understanding of the world's diversity of environments, peoples, cultures and economies.

Geography lessons at Mount St Mary's are designed to allow students to study in depth the complex relationship between humans and the natural world.

The intention of Geography is to enable students to follow and participate in debates in significant local, national and global issues and take them beyond their own experience. This knowledge of the world contributes strongly to students' future successes.
